* Each of the Working Group sessions are pieces of a whole, designed to deepen and gather our learning in a collaborative way so that we can produce a collective expression of our vision and commitments for the future. As such, the Working Groups will be interacting directly with and responding to the presentations by Peter Rollins and the responses by the other presenters.

This gathering is designed in such a way that the Working Groups are the core of our time together. Peter’s role is to provoke, challenge, and fund our imagination, but the real work is ours. In the end, we will produce a document like a white paper or a programmatic essay that points the way toward a new missional engagement for our local communities.
